Hollywood Slots at Bangor Bets On Synectics For Superior Surveillance

February 2008 – Synectic Systems, Inc. (Synectics), global manufacturer of digital recording systems, industrial cameras, analogue switchers, and award-winning command and control Synergy™ software announces its selection by Penn National Gaming to provide an integrated digital recording surveillance solution for the expansion of Maine's first gaming facility - Hollywood Slots at Bangor - Penn National Gaming Inc's new $131 million gaming and hotel complex. Hollywood Slots at Bangor chose Synectics for its high quality video, superior user interface, and ability to integrate with a wide variety of other essential systems such as building management, access controls, point of sale, slot machine management, etc.

Synectics combines superior video quality and the faster frame rate specifically required by gaming surveillance, where excellent picture quality, security of images and evidential value are high priority when selecting a surveillance system. The solution enables security personnel to actively detect and act upon security infractions with easy event-driven access for review and investigation. The Synectics solution also provides a truly scalable and flexible surveillance and recording solution that will easily adapt to future expansion requirements.

"We are delighted to be a part of the expansion at Hollywood Slots at Bangor," says John Katnic, Vice President and Chief Operating Officer of Synectics North America.
